

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A portable construction material stand is provided with a flanged support portion and a base portion. The portable construction material stand is adapted 5 for use with a single support portion unattached to another support portion and does not use any cross-supports. The portable construction material stand may be used in conjunction with two or more portable material stands.